

Impacted Areas: Kentucky, Tennessee, Arkansas, Illinois, Missouri, and Mississippi
Disaster Type: Severe storm damage and power outages
Response Status: Responding, Long-term Recovery

Background Information

On December 10th, 2021 and into the early hours of December 11th, an estimated 50 tornadoes were reported across eight Midwest states, killing 88 people – at least 76 of them in Kentucky – and leaving tens of thousands without power, homes, or jobs to return to. On December 14th, Servants deployed an Early Response Assessment Team to visit the area and determine how Servants can best provide relief.

Report from Early Response Assessment

The destruction from these tornadoes was so random – leaving some homes standing while their neighboring home was completely gone. The team visited the rural town of Bremen, the cities of Mayfield and Bowling Green, and the small community of Dawson Springs. In most of these areas, the major debris had been cleared from the roadways and emergency vehicles were able to access homes. The team connected with local emergency managers and other relief organizations to establish plans for future relief trips.
